Little World Beverages Chief Executive Officer resigns

Little World Beverages Limited, the parent company of Little Creatures Brewing, today announced that the Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”), Jason Marinko, will leave the Company during August 2007. Mr. Marinko has served more than 2 years as CEO of the Company and has advised the Board that he now wishes to pursue other interests.

Mr. Marinko will continue to work with Nic Trimboli and Howard Cearns of the Creative Development Team to ensure a smooth transition pending the appointment of a successor.

The Company has recently announced several new initiatives including the development of additional brewing capacity in Western Australia and Victoria. In addition it is opening a retail outlet in Melbourne and will shortly launch a new cider product.

The Company will look to appoint a successor who is well qualified to implement these exciting initiatives.

Ian Cochrane, Chairman of Little World Beverages, said “Jason has made a strong contribution during his 2 years as CEO of the Company and the Company has achieved many important milestones under his leadership. On behalf of the Board, the Company expresses its appreciation to Jason for his assistance during his tenure as the CEO and wishes him the best for his future.”

Commenting on his departure, Mr. Marinko said “It has been both rewarding and a privilege to have worked with such an innovative Board and a dynamic team. Since floating the business we have put in place a number of exciting initiatives, including the expansion of our operations in Fremantle, which will see the brand continue to be a leader in the premium beer market”.
